Ranveer Singh Backs Women's Squash Tournament

Actor Ranveer Singh is a sports lover. He will be backing the women's final squash tournament, following a small request from his school friend Pia Bhattacharaya, a squash enthusiast, mentor to budding players and wife of five-time national squash champion, Ritwik Bhattacharya.

Pia got in touch with Singh as she felt it would do the team and the sport good to get a celebrity endorsement. Bhattacharya sent a text asking Singh to be a part of a women's final match and felicitation program hosted by the Indian Squash Circuit (ISC). "We went to school together. I've known him for 14 years. I figured I'd have to go through a certain number of people to get to him but Bollywood hasn't managed to change Ranveer," said the squash mentor. As the saying goes a friend in need is a friend indeed couldn't be more truer.

Ecstatic about Singh's decision Bhattacharaya went on the say, "Our squash players really need the publicity and Bollywood has a great influence on Indians. When a superstar endorses a sport, it changes the entire game. Ranveer is always helping friends, family, and is the kind of man who'd walk out of his car to help someone on the street."

World Rank 10, Joshna Chinappa, and World Rank 19, Dipika Pallikal, were over the moon to hear the news too. It's been said Ranveer who is as equally excited about the whole thing, will also play a friendly match with the young women. Says Ranveer "I believe women squash players have it in them to be at the top"
